1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

2. Claims 1, 6, 7, 9, 15, and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mould et al. (USPN 2003/0158642).

Mould teaches a steering apparatus with a driving force section 3 to control left and right driving forces of the left and right wheel individually, a power assistance device 5 to add steering assistance force to the driver's steering input, a steering mechanism to link the drive wheels to the steering input, and a controller 12 that calculates a steering reaction force on the steering input in accordance with the difference between the left and right steering forces. It also corrects the steering assistance force with the steering reaction force.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2-5, 8, 10, 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mould in view of Adler (USPN 5,469,928).

Mould lacks a teaching to provide individual motors for driving the laterally spaced wheels or to adjust the reaction force based on which wheel is inside or outside of a turn.

Adler teaches a drive arrangement with a motor 10, 8, for each or a left and a right drive wheel 6, 4. It also teaches providing steering assist to the vehicle by increasing drive force on the outer wheel and decreasing drive force to the inner wheel.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the Mould system with wheel individual motors, as taught by Adler, in order to precisely control drive distribution to the wheels. It would also have been obvious to decrease electric power assist in proportion to the assist provided by the motors in order to avoid over-steering the vehicle.

5. Claim 17 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
